News from Civic Voice

Below is a round up of some of the recent information received from Civic Voice. You can find more through the SDCT website – see below.

Localism Bill

The Localism Bill is proceeding rapidly through Parliament and still on course to come into force next year. Civic Voice has been very active in shaping the Bill and is grateful to all those civic societies which have raised issues and concerns with their local MPs. They have met regularly with civil servants and Minister Greg Clark and organised various workshops.

The views of the Civic Voice are summarised in a briefing for MPs, which can be found on their website (access can be gained via our website, see next page).

They have been in touch with MPs about making important changes to the Bill and anticipate putting forward amendments which will:

- Protect local services like pubs and shops by requiring planning permission for a change of use
- Strengthen the requirement on local authorities to support civic societies, parish councils and other community groups when preparing neighbourhood plans
- Enable neighbourhood plans to be prepared for areas which cross local authority boundaries
- Extend the right to nominate buildings and land of community value to include civic societies
- Tackle the continuing threat from developments which cut across agreed Local Plans or Neighbourhood Plans
- Require developers to consult communities before submitting planning applications on many more developments than currently proposed
- Introduce a presumption to sell valued community assets to communities first before they are put on the open market

The Government responded to the Civic Voice calls for a simple explanation of the Bill by publishing a Plain English Guide which can be read at: <http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/localgovernment/pdf/1818597.pdf>

Campaign success on heritage

They reported success in the campaign to avoid the Localism Bill weakening protection for conservation areas and listed buildings. This was raised as an issue by a large number of civic groups. In response to lobbying and an amendment proposed to the Bill the Minister Greg Clark has told MPs that:

"It is certainly not the Government's intention to weaken the protection for heritage assets.....the Bill gives rise to understandable concerns on the part of the heritage community".

and has promised to amend the Bill accordingly.

Planning matters

The Localism Bill has prompted a flurry of speeches by Ministers on their views on planning, especially from Localism Minister Greg Clark.

One of the first applications of the Government's commitment to sustainable development will be through the planning system – where the Government is to introduce a presumption in favour of sustainable development. This may be included in law as a change to the Localism Bill and will be included in the National Planning Policy Framework.

According to the Civic Voice, the Government is moving forward with a major review of national planning policies, with a view to bringing them all together into a single National Planning Policy Framework. A poll of members showed that there is strong support to retain existing policies for the historic environment, design, and protecting town centres. Apparently, the Civic Voice entered one of over 3,000 submissions to the Government.

Civic Voice reports that Housing Minister Grant Shapps and Planning Minister Greg Clark have launched a strongly worded attack on “bog standard identikit Legoland” new housing and encouraged communities to use neighbourhood plans to demand better. It is interesting that this comes at a time when the Government's former design watchdog CABE finds new life as a charity within the Design Council. It will continue to receive some Government funding to undertake design reviews of new development. The Minister's comments can be used by civic societies in campaigning against poor housing design and commenting on planning applications, as well as providing input to the new proposals for neighbourhood plans now in the Localism Bill.

The Ministers' attack on poor housing design can be found on their website.

Transferring heritage assets

English Heritage has produced a helpful guide on how best to manage the transfer of historic buildings and other heritage assets to the community. Civic Voice participated in a workshop during the preparation of this report.

Civic Voice will be helping shape the final guidance and is interested in your views on the draft, in addition to any comments sent directly to English Heritage before the deadline of 13 May. It would also help them to know what support you would find helpful by way of workshops, training or online resources to help make best use of the guide. A copy of the draft good practice guide can be found at:

<http://www.english-heritage.org.uk/caring/listing/local/local-designations/local-list/>

Minister supports Civic Voice

It is good to know that, in a speech by the Communities Minister Baroness Hanham to the Heritage Champions in local government, she also welcomed the arrival of Civic Voice:

“The rapid emergence of the new national charity for the civic movement, Civic Voice is testament to the strength of interest in and passion for our historic local surroundings. A professional voice is essential to help communities understand and interpret what can often seem complex and impenetrable planning laws and procedures and to make their views heard at the appropriate time and in the right forum.”

The speech can be read in full via the website.

It is good to see that the work of Civic Voice at a national level is being taken seriously by Government. The information above is just a sample of the information they send out, so for more information see the Civic Voice website (www.civicvoice.org.uk) or via the SDCT website (<http://n21.net/southgate-district-civic-trust.html>)

The New Southgate Masterplan Public Consultation

The consultation report was published in November 2010 and a thinly attended meeting for the Neighbourhood Panel was held at St Paul's Church Hall on 24th November. The question of when the plan would start to be implemented and which projects would be prioritised was not answered. The cuts to the Government Grant to Local Authorities recently announced suggest not very much and not very soon. However, on 10 February I received a letter from the Council to say that the Masterplan had been approved for adoption by the Council on 15 December 2010 but the "Delivery Strategy" will not be published until "late Spring 2011".

The profile of the respondents showed a significant under representation of the under 21 age group and considerable over representation of those between 31 and 40 and a rather greater proportion of women than men, not a surprising result. Most people approved the "vision" of the scheme, although many felt that it was too "broad" (vague?) to be meaningful. The most popular proposal is that to regenerate the area around New Southgate Station, which involves the creation of a public square around the station and attempts to deal with the problem of on-street commuter parking. As this lies on the borough boundary between Enfield and Barnet, the cooperation of Barnet Council would be essential and it has agreed to make land available on its side of the boundary. There was 78% approval for the plans. Interestingly, one third of respondents did not think that this development was an important priority to them.

A similar way of thinking emerges in the public response to the Masterplan generally; people tended to prioritise the smaller detailed improvements rather than the more grandiose projects, possibly because they realise that the latter are the least likely to materialise soon. The Western Gateway proposals received 69% support for a mixed use development although 15% were against any housing being included because of concerns about air quality so close to the North Circular Road and that it was too dense. Respondents were also divided on whether to retain the gasholder. Many people thought jobs more important than homes. It has been conceded that these developments are a long way into the future as the Council does not own the land.

The Plan's proposals for High View Estate, High Road Estate, Red Brick Estate and High Road shops received 73% to 78% approval, probably because these promise more immediate improvement to residents' lives. Detailed plans for the Red Brick Estate improvements were recently circulated to residents, and a consultation period ends on 18th April. Work is expected to start on this estate in the summer of this year.

The rebuilding of the Ladderswood Estate had 74% support. Of the bigger schemes this is the most likely to come about, as it depends on private capital. However, not many of the existing residents will benefit, as most will have been moved to other social housing in Enfield and the new residents will be mainly owner occupiers. The Council, however, insists that the level of affordable housing will be unaffected. As a result of objections from some of the tenants of the industrial estate, some light industrial development is being allowed on the Ladderswood Area. The selected Development Partner for this scheme is due to be announced by the Council on 27th April, and work will probably commence during the summer of 2012.

The plans for Coppicewood Care Home got 66% approval. This would mean the Care Home being demolished, the creation of a larger public area together with Grove Road Open Space and some residential development. Opening up this site would allow a better pedestrian friendly connection between New Southgate and Arnos Grove stations.

The proposal to create a Public Square around Arnos Grove Station and generally improve the public realm between the shops and the library/swimming pool complex was approved by 66% of respondents and opposed by 21%. However, it is thought that many opponents believed, wrongly, that the scheme provides for the demolition of the library. That is, of course, impossible, as this is a Grade 2 listed building. Keeping the library where it was important for many people, as was improved access to the station for the mobility impaired. The Council seems to be willing to retain the library on its present site for the time being, but will have to devise some means of improving access for mobility impaired visitors, a difficult task given the design of the entrance and its Listed status. As a start to improving the look of this area, hawthorn trees have now been planted outside the former Arnos Arms pub and along the pavement in front of the shops between Arnos Grove Station and Betstyle Circus.

As regards the transport and parking implications of the Masterplan, Transport for London have not raised any serious objections. They approve of the plan to narrow Station Road, which some respondents thought would increase congestion, as long as buses are not adversely affected, and similarly, they back the proposals for a public square around Arnos Grove Station, provided the transfer arrangements for passengers between trains and buses can be maintained. Both Barnet and Enfield Councils and TfL are concerned that none of the regeneration should increase traffic using the roads. This will require careful control of parking provision.

Open Meeting – 5th March 2011:
Bambos Charalambous & Mike Smith:
Heritage and Enfield Council - Challenges for the Future

Bambos Charalambous is one of the Palmers Green ward councillors and grew up in this area. Mike Brown is a council officer, in charge of conservation and heritage for Enfield Council.

This meeting ranged through a number of areas of interest to the members who attended. Disappointingly and rather surprisingly, the attendance was lower than previous meetings.

Bambos started the meeting by discussing the Council's budget and the savings that the council were obliged to find. He explained some of the impact this was likely to have locally. In addition there are some impacts to our area due to the London Plan, as Enfield plans have to fit in to this.

The localism bill currently going through Parliament contains a section on heritage. As a result local authorities will need to take this into account as they develop strategies to look after their heritage assets.

Part of Enfield's response to the big society, is the recent establishment of the Enfield Residents Priority Fund (ward based budgets), which has recently been launched by this administration. Money will be allocated to each ward in the borough, so that it will be available for local projects suggested by residents. The ideas need to be supported by the local ward councillors, who will put forward the proposals for approval and funding. More details can be found on the London Borough of Enfield website, however the agenda and minutes of the Cabinet meeting on 9th February give more information and can be found at:

<http://governance.enfield.gov.uk/ieListDocuments.aspx?Cid=107&MIId=6555&Ver=4>

Bambos then turned his attention to the local developments in the area and he and Mike gave an update on progress:

Ladderswood Estate redevelopment – this will continue over the next 2-3 years.

Millfield House – work should be completed at the end of March at a cost of £1.2m. The refurbished house will be available for use by the community.

Forty Hall – is now closed to the public while work is undertaken. This has been funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund. It is expected to re-open in spring 2012. The banqueting suite will remain open throughout the work.

Southgate Town Hall – the library move into Palmers Green has been cancelled. It is intended that the building will be returned to public use. Reports will be presented to the council in April.

Naturally there was great interest at the meeting in the plans for Broomfield House. Much of the discussion was around the plans recently shown at the public consultation. Briefly, the plan is to restore the building to the 1820 façade. Part of the building will be for community use and the remainder sheltered housing. Further housing will be built in the old stable block. (See pages 8 and 9 for more details).

Many of the original features of the building have been in storage, so can be reinstated. It is hoped that the development will be completed by 2014, using funding from the London Mayor.

Reports on the progress of this plan can be found on the London Borough of Enfield website. However, Mike did say that the feedback so far received is generally positive, although there are some areas that will need to be reviewed again.

A question was raised about a local museum for Enfield. At the time Bambos was unable to provide details, however he later followed up with the Museum Service. The information received is printed in full on the next page.

The meeting broke for tea, but both Bambos and Mike were asked many further questions during the break. I am sure everyone who attended found the information and updates interesting and helpful, although there was probably not enough time to go into as much detail as many would have liked.

Post Open Meeting Follow Up on the Museum Service from Julie Gibson, Head of Libraries and Museums, Enfield Museums

Following up from questions at the open meeting, Councillor Bambos Charalambous requested an update in relation to Enfield's plans for the Museum Service.

'The Museum Service has moved out of Forty Hall, as a result of the developments there, to its new home in the Dugdale Centre at Thomas Hardy House. The Council recognises the value that an understanding of our shared heritage can bring to the local community and is keen to ensure that there is an improvement in the cultural offer not just in Enfield Town Centre, but also in other areas of the Borough.

There are three key outcomes which we would hope to achieve from the implementation of improvements to the museum service:

- Increasing availability and accessibility
- Responsive services
- Sustained, developed and accessible collections

As part of the redevelopment of the ground floor of Thomas Hardy House, a dedicated space was identified for museum provision along with the potential for displaying items from the collections within the other public areas. The Local Studies Unit is also located in this building and this provides an opportunity to maximize the resources of both services.

Consideration is being given to having some museum presence on the first floor of Thomas Hardy House. However, the Council is also considering options for the development of museum spaces in other parts of the borough and I will continue to look for opportunities to develop a greater museum presence across the borough and in areas where the existing cultural offer is minimal.

I hope this reassures you that we want to continue to develop the Museum Service and to communicate a clear message about its role and relevance across the whole of the Borough.'

The Mallet

At our last Executive Committee meeting, our former Chairman, Geoff Bone, brought with him a wooden mallet to pass on to our present Chairman, Graham, to use as a gavel at meetings (if necessary!). Geoff himself had this mallet passed to him by his predecessor Alison Cathcart, but she told me that she doesn't know where it came from.

This is not just an ordinary mallet, however. It's a special one which was made to commemorate the foundation stone laying of Bowes Park Methodist Church (in Bowes Road, Palmers Green) in 1907. This is engraved into the mallet head, (as shown). Although we don't know (yet) who gave this to us, we do know that it was one of a number produced to give to those children who took part in the brick laying ceremony. One of these youngsters was my wife Mary's Great Aunt, who later became a Sunday School teacher at the church for many years, and had her own engraved mallet for a long time. Additionally, there is a hand written signature on top of the Trust's mallet head, "G.W.Holland". Perhaps this was the original owner? Enquiries will continue.

If anyone can tell us how the Trust obtained this mallet, we would be pleased to hear from them.

Planning Group Report

Since the last newsletter the group have dealt with 19 town planning applications. The meetings also deal with other issues.

We do not, as a rule, get involved with the Licensing Act and individual applications. It has always been considered that it should be dealt with by residents and resident associations. However, the application for a licence by 18 The Green, N21 was considered a different matter. Their application was for them to be able to have entertainment and sell alcoholic drinks until 2.30-3.00 am every day except Sunday. It did not sound like the request from a restaurant but the kind of establishment that would cause a nuisance/noise for the residents nearby and in the Conservation Area. So following requests by the WHRA and one of our members living opposite to No.18 I sent an objection from the Trust. Prior to the public meeting with the Council's Licensing Sub-Committee some 33 conditions were agreed to by the owners, following objections by the Metropolitan Police and Trading Standards. These covered all our objections except the entertainment which were classed as Films. I was told that no film that has not been classified by the British Board of Film Classification can be shown without local classification by the Council whose policy is only to grant '18' certificates for unclassified film. With the exclusion of live transmission of television programmes, any 'moving images' are classed as a 'film' and require a licence. These can include playing of videos and DVD's or any moving images. A Licence was issued to 18 The Green. However, hours open to the public became Sunday 10.00am to 12.00pm and Monday to Saturday from 8.00am to 12.30am the following day. This was in keeping with all other restaurants on The Green as were all other aspects of the granted Licence (except films).

The reason that I have gone into such detail is that if there is any deviation from hours or conditions only those of us around The Green will know and any "interested party (in close vicinity)" may apply for a Review of a licence that is in force. So it is up to us to keep a check on the hours, noise and content of 'films'.

18 The Green has been hidden behind boards since planning approval in 2000 (with the occasional work to it in order to keep the permission alive) and has recently emerged with a frontage that will be the subject of consideration in the future, until we can see planning permission for it, or receive a current application.

Broomfield House was brought up at our last public meeting and has been commented on in my reports and my updates at our AGM's. I saw a presentation on the draft stages for the house and stables at the February Conservation Advisory Group meeting and understood that the program will be finalized soon. This will be taken by the council to the Mayor of London and a planning application will be submitted by the end of this year. If all went well a possible start on construction would be Spring/Autumn 2012. It is considered to be on target to meet the Mayor of London and the GLA's target of getting to that stage. Of course for the project to go forward is dependent on the Mayor of London coming up with the promised £5.97million. There are parallel options, I believe, in the pipe line should this not occur.

In the hope that there may be a new member who would like to join our monthly meetings at 6 Eversley Mount, N21 at 8pm I can be reached on 020 8364 3500 for any information regarding dates of meetings. This group is an integral part of the SDCT. Without a regular team it cannot be sustained. There is always a great interest by members on the work that we do and the many telephone calls for help that I receive means that I know that people know where to come, but not to physically give us the help that we need to carry on.

MAY DAY ON THE GREEN

The Christ Church May Fair will once again be held on Southgate Green, on Bank Holiday Monday, 2nd May from 11am to 4pm.

As usual, the Trust will have a display and sales table, with our publications available. We hope this will attract a good deal of interest. Please come along to support us. Proceeds from the fair will go to Christ Church and other charities.

Sunday Community Market in Palmers Green

At the recent Friends of Broomfield Park meeting, the managers of the present Sunday Community Market in Palmers Green Station car park, Emma Maloney and Hannah Edwards, presented their plans for holding the market in the north-east corner of the park, alongside Aldermans Hill, during the summer months. The idea is to make the market more visible in a central location, which will revive the market and hopefully the surrounding area. Their proposal is for 20 stalls and a limit of 4 vehicles, between the Coronation Gates and the N.E. corner.

It was emphasised that this would only be for a trial period, and subject to local agreement. Issues such as damage to bulbs and grass, and litter, would be closely monitored.

Any comments from local residents?

Broomfield House Restoration

It's been 27 years since the first of the series of fires severely damaged the much loved and well used Broomfield House. Many schemes have come and gone since then to restore it, most requiring a commercial element and additional buildings. The latest one, which may be the house's last chance of survival, could be the one which works.

In 2009, a survey and report was completed which concluded that a viable restoration was possible, in partnership with a social landlord. This would consist of a cafe, meeting room and entrance hall in the restored house, plus 18 homes for older residents in the house, stable block and kitchen garden area. A successful bid was made to the London Development Agency for £5.97m of core funding for the project, and £500k was received in April 2010 to fund design work and consultants.

In January, a public exhibition and workshops were held, as part of the public consultation on the proposed scheme. Members of the Trust were involved in the workshops, and contributed to the feedback on the plans. The final report from the consultation is expected at the end of March, when Enfield will present the final plans to the GLA, prior to formal planning application. If the GLA accept the proposals, the remainder of the £5.97M budget will be released, and the planning application will be made in May.

Although the scheme has been broadly welcomed, the main criticism has been the inclusion of two additional apartment units on the ground floor, severely reducing the amount of public space in the house.

At a meeting of the Friends of Broomfield Park in February, which I attended, the scheme was discussed, and our MP, David Burrowes, explained the issues. There is no active partner yet for the project, and Enfield Council have assessed that the overall cost will be nearer £8M. The £2M difference will have to be made up with the partner, and two additional units will make the scheme more viable and attractive for a prospective social housing partner. This is a significant consideration when specialist contractors are involved. The other constraint on expanding the public space is that the old parts and walls of this historic building will be reinstated, making it difficult to include a large room on the ground floor.

Two interesting questions were posed to Mr. Burrowes at the Friends meeting:

Why do the plans have to incorporate the two units in the house. Why not further modify the Stable Block?

Answer – it has been clearly specified by the GLA that the money is to go towards creating housing from a disused building, (“bringing back a redundant building into use”). This needs to be justified.

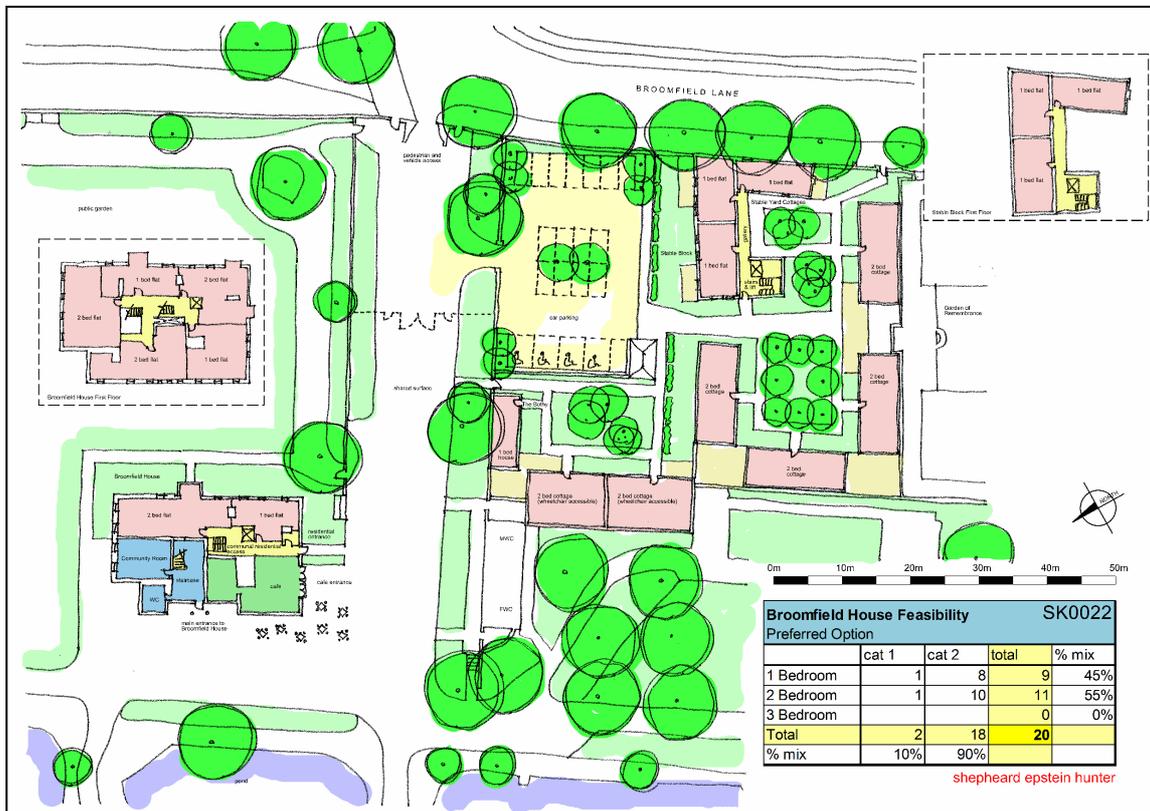

Is it still Sheltered Housing?

Answer – No, it will be housing for local elderly people on a shared equity type of arrangement.

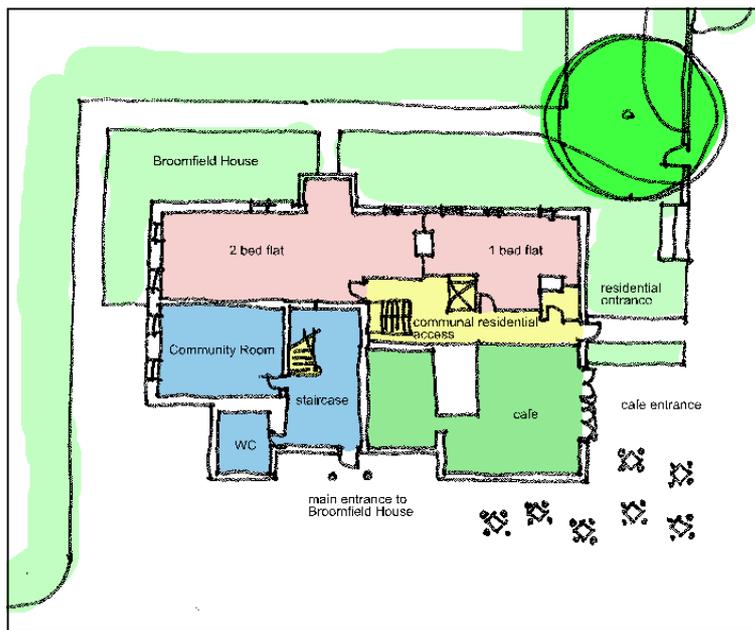

Mr. Burrowes also stated that the Covenants will be protected, as the proposal only affects the House and Stable Yard footprints, and therefore there will be no need for a land tribunal. A refurbished House will also strengthen any future lottery-fund grant applications for wider improvements to the Park itself.

No doubt we shall soon know the outcome of this proposal.

Local Footpath Map

The Enfield Society have published a new version of their local footpath map. Extending further afield than previous editions, this now includes Southgate, Winchmore Hill and Palmers Green, as well as Enfield itself, parts of Cuffley and Potters Bar, East Barnet and the Lea Valley from Angel Road to Enfield Lock. The paths are marked clearly in red, distinguishing between public rights of way and permissive paths. Public open spaces are shown in green. The paths are superimposed on an outline road map, and public transport access is indicated. The scale is two inches to the mile. The map is printed on good quality paper and folded for easy opening. It is supplied in a protective transparent plastic sleeve.

The map is available from the Trust at £2.50, post free if ordered on the form on page 11.

HISTORY GROUP MEETING – 4th MAY

The speaker at this meeting will be Mary Soulsby. Mary has limited mobility, but is a keen photographer. She lives in Enfield, and a few years ago, as a birthday present, she was given the chance to fly in a small plane from North Weald aerodrome to Enfield, and see her local area from above. She took the opportunity to take photos and will be talking about the occasion and showing us her slides.

Roman Enfield From Settlement to London Suburb

Roman Enfield is the inaugural exhibition of the new Enfield Museum at the Dugdale Centre, (Thomas Hardy House, 39 London Road, Enfield).

This Exhibition tells the story of how the Roman settlement at Bush Hill Park developed, what it was like and why it was there.

It's open Monday to Friday from 11am to 4pm, and runs until 3rd May 2011. Admission is FREE!

The exhibition is a "Stories of the World" project, part of the London 2012 Cultural Olympiad, led by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA), in partnership with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG).

It will be interesting to know what our members think of the exhibition and the new Museum. Let's have your feedback.

TREES ON THE RAILWAY LINE IN GRANGE PARK

Following the article in our October issue last year, we are still in constant communication with our MP, David Burrowes, and have been since the trees in Winchmore Hill were cleared two years ago, and more recently since the carnage at Grange Park. We are still waiting to hear what can be done.

We are continuing to support the protest against tree felling on railway banks and feel that the only solution is to change Rail Track's licence to do what they like on their land.
